

DIANE ADAMS

CHILDREN'S BOOK AUTHOR

Diane Adams is the author of two books with Chronicle Books (Love Is, and Two Hands To Love You), and three books with Peachtree Publishers (Zoom!, I Can Do It Myself, and I Want To Help). Love Is was featured in the Washington Post and chosen as an Amazon Book of the Year for 2017. Her books have been translated into 6 languages and Adams has also illustrated a book for The National Wildlife Refuge, entitled A Home for Salty.

Diane is currently a professor of Children's Literature and Expository Writing at University in Southern California. She resides in Redlands, CA with her husband, two dogs and one cat. She's the proud momma of her son Chris who lives in Utah and in her free time, Diane loves to paint, hike, bike, do yoga and take her dogs Pumpkin and Ginger for walks.

"A love poem, an ode to motherhood, this sweet and touching book will speak to children who have or want a pet, as well as to their parents."—School Library Journal

RECENT BOOKS

Amazon Book of the Year 2017

APPEARANCES

- School Visits, Festivals and Conferences
- www.DianeAdams.com to inquire about inviting Diane to your event!